Potts. Both are wall and the control of the control per man and author, was appointed yesterday to succeed the late Charles S. Greene as prothonotary of the Pennsylvannia Supreme Court for the Eastern District, with headquarters in Philadelphia. The appointment was announced yesterday at Pittsburg, where the court was silting. The three prothonotaryships in the State are filled by appointment of the justices of the Supreme Court. While a majority is sufficient to appoint, it is reported the selection of McClure was ily unanimous vote of the six judges. As the Eastern District prothonotaryship pays approximately $15,000 a year in fees and is virtually a life position, free from political interference, it is regarded by many as the prize appointive position in the State.

Colonel McClure's selection was not a curprise. It virtually was agreed on about four weeks ago, as announced at that time in The North American.

As Colonel McClure recently lost $125,000 and McClure recently lost $125,000 and McClure recently lost $125,000 and those going North will be hauled as far as Washington traveling passenger agent of the Pennsylvania for the southeastern passenger department of the Chesapeake and Ohio, and Mr. U. J. D. Lippincott Makes a Society Reporter His Bride.

SHE IS A SOUTHERN GIRL

Miss Armstrong, Daughter of a Confederate General, to be Mistress of Yellow Mansion.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.).

PHILADELPHIA, PA., Nov. 10.—James Dundas Lippincott, owner of the famous Yellow Mansion, at Broad and Walnut Streets, and heir to an estate of $5,000. p. left to him by his mother, is to be married. Announcement was made yesterday that Mr. Lippincott, on November Zist, will wed Miss Belle Armstrong, of Washington, D. C.

Miss Armstrong is society editor of one of the Washington newspapers, and is the daughter of Brigadier-General Frank C. Armstrong. Confederate States army, who was Assistant Commissioner of Indian Affairs during the second Cleveland administration.

Mr. Lippincott is a widower. His future wife is about forty years old. Whatever thought Mr. Lippincott might have entertained at times of disposing of the immensely valuable property at Broad and Walnut Streets, which is the site of the Lippincott mansion and its gardens, probably will be abandoned, now that he has elected to provide the picturesque old house and its treasures of antique furniture and brica-braz with a new mistress. To only a small number of Mr. Lippincott's friends has his intention to remarry been known. He caused the announcement to be sent out yesterday, and then left for Washington, where he will remain during most of the time that will elapse before the wedding.

SUBMARINES WIN A VICTORY

Destroy the Enemy at Anchor Despite the Search Lights of the Fort.

of the Fort.

(By Associated Press.)

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 10.—Further torpedo boat practice took place in the harbor last night, resulting in a victory for the submarines. Commander Fletcher, in charge of the torpedo station, sent the torpedo boats McKee and Morris, in command of Lieutenant Davis, with instructions to destroy or capture two submarine torpedo boats, which were reported in the vicinity of Newport harbor.

Later, the submarine torpedo boats Adder and Shark were sent out in command of Lieutenants Pinney and Nelson with instructions to destroy two torpedo boats somewhere in the vicinity of Newport harbor and also destroy an enemy, which was anchored near the torpedo station.

The sea was moderately smooth and conditions considered unfavorable for the submarines. While the boats were manceuvreing, the searchlights of the torpedo station were used against the submarines to assist the McKee and Morris and to protect the reported enemy at anchor near the station.

The submarines engaged the Morris and "destroyed" her, while the McKee was not successful in sinking the submarines.

Later, the submarines "destroyed" the marines.

Later, the submarines "destroyed" the enemy at anchor, while the searchlights were used against the former.
